

North Kent Embroiderers

Hello everyone,
This has been quite an exciting month for us for several reasons. The Embroiderers' Guild has had a major restructure and as a result we are now an independent stitch group with the new name you see above. Our website has been updated and you can see all our activities and contacts there.

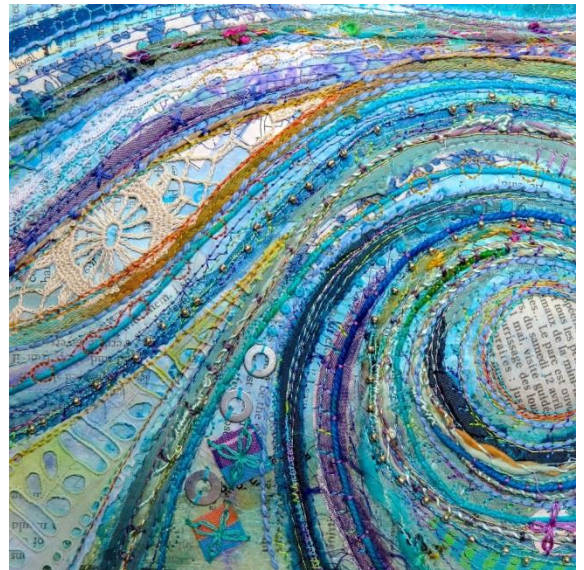

Another excitement is that we have had our first Zoom speaker- Isobel Moore with her talk entitled 'Evolutions'. Isobel is a well-respected textile artist with a great love of colour. She told us how her early life had led to her current interest in stitching. She said that she had learnt to sew from her Grandmother and had always been interested in creating pictures and painting.

You can see some of her work in the pictures here. Isobel is planning to run a Zoom day school for us in June.

We have also had our usual monthly Zoom chat which is a lovely way to keep in touch with each other and to see what we have each been doing in the way of stitching. Sue D has finished a piece with beautiful ducks on it, Evelyn has made a quilted cushion cover, Karen has made cushion covers for her garden chairs and Wendy has worked a piece using the Blackwork technique.

If you are interested in joining us or coming just for a visit, whether real (or by Zoom until September), then please look at our website. We have a new QR code which gives speedy access if you have a QR reader app on your phone.
